35 Installations Will Be Closed

By DARRELL GARWOOD
United Press International
WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara today announced the closing of 35 military installations with a reduction of 16,300 in personnel. He said the savings would be $106 million a year.

McNamara promised that all civilians losing jobs will be offered new ones. He estimated that nearly 80 per cent will remain on the payroll.

He said he expects a net reduction of 7,800 military personnel and 8,500 civilian employees in the widespread closings affecting 14 states and three foreign countries.

The Pentagon chief told a news conference there will be further reductions. He said some will be in the government's 11 naval shipyards but he discounted reports that these reductions will necessarily be in the San Francisco, Boston and Philadelphia yards.

Congressmen Angry
Reports that those shipyards would be closed brought a storm of congressional wrath and delegations from the three affected states later reported they had been assured the bases would not be closed. Indications were, however, that the assurances were only temporary.

Among the largest installations to be closed are 5th Army headquarters in Chicago (being moved to Ft. Sheridan, Ill.); the Army depot at Rome, N.Y.; Ft. Worth, Tex., and Schenectady, N.Y.; the naval repair shipyard at San Diego, Calif.; and AFB, Nev., and Army Camps Chaffee, Ark., and Leroy Johnson, La.

McNamara's written announcement referred to closings and reductions of bases.

In answer to questions, however, he said half of those listed would be eliminated and the other half would be "very substantially reduced" to all practical purposes eliminated.

Total savings in his base reduction program started in 1961 now amount to 70,000 jobs and $424 million a year, he said. He estimated that another $125 to $150 million a year could be saved by this method.

The secretary said he will freeze employment at other defense installations to make jobs available for those being cut from the payroll.

New Job Offers
"Every employee whose job is eliminated will be offered another job opportunity," he said. "If the new job requires a move, the expense in the case of career employees and their families will be borne by the government."

His estimates indicated that approximately 35,000 government employees will be moved to other jobs. He said the Defense Department will provide retraining programs for about 5 per cent who would otherwise be unemployed.

Approximately 20 per cent of the employees losing jobs are expected to go voluntarily into private industry or other careers.

McNamara refused to identify the overseas bases being closed, on the ground that these actions have not yet been discussed with the foreign governments involved. His list included 25 installations in the United States and seven overseas.

Legion And Auxiliary Hold Christmas Party

The American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary held their annual Christmas party Monday evening at the American Legion Hall. Mrs. Claude Anderson, President of the Auxiliary, welcomed the members and guests, and Otto Swann, Commander of the Legion, gave the invocation.

The dinner was served buffet style from a table decorated in the Christmas motif by Mrs. David Henry.

Mrs. Henry, Program Chairman, introduced the following program: Mrs. Lynda Cochran presented her dance pupils in three numbers, Mrs. Glendine Reeves and Miss Caroline Reeves played Christmas carols on the marimba, and Miss Jean Reeves, 3 1/2 year old daughter of Mrs. Reeves, played a piano solo. Miss Jean Bledsoe, accompanied by Miss Darlene Brewer, sang a solo and Miss Bledsoe and Miss Brewer sang a duet. They also did group singing of Christmas Carols.

Gifts were exchanged from a decorated tree and the Auxiliary presented their President, Mrs. Anderson, with a gift. The building was decorated for the occasion by Mrs. Macon Erwin, Mrs. David Henry, Mrs. Lester Nanny, Mrs. Mildred Barnett, Mrs. Peter Kuhn, and Mrs. Anderson.

Quick Action Seen On New 50¢ Piece

WASHINGTON — Congress wasted no time today in considering President Johnson's proposal to mint new 50-cent pieces that would carry a likeness of the late John F. Kennedy.

Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., who supports the plan, called a closed session of his banking and currency committee to discuss and probably vote on the legislation.

Johnson submitted the bill Monday. No Senate action has been scheduled yet but it is expected that the measure will sail through Congress without any trouble.

In a separate action Wednesday, Johnson also urged congressional support for a proposal to rename the planned National Cultural Center in Washington the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

Johnson added that it would be "entirely fitting" for the federal government to provide funds to match contributions which are now being solicited from the public to build the center here on a site overlooking the Potomac River.

"This action should ensure prompt completion of the center to which President Kennedy gave his full support and which he saw as an embodiment of our nation's interest in the finest expression of our cultural activity," Johnson said.

Bethel College To Seek New Location In West Kentucky

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky. — Bethel College, founded here 109 years ago, announced today that it will seek a new location in some other western Kentucky city because of the anticipated competition from the state-operated community college to be built in Hopkinsville.

The announcement said the decision was reached after a lengthy session by the board of trustees Tuesday night, and was based on the opinion of educators that "Hopkinsville is too small to support two colleges adequately."

The resolution adopted by the board said, "The decision to locate a University of Kentucky community college here placed Bethel in an untenable position, because it will dilute the financial support and the commencing student enrollment of Bethel."

A committee was formed to investigate possible offers of locations in other western Kentucky communities, and report its findings by Feb. 1.

Bethel, a liberal arts school with an enrollment of 225, supported in part by the Kentucky Baptist Convention, last week was placed on probation by the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges, an accrediting organization. Lack of suitable physical facilities was the basis of the suspension.

Bethel recently raised $201,000 in a brief campaign, most of it in Hopkinsville. The Baptist convention had stipulated that the school would have to raise $250,000 in order to receive a share of an $8 million education fund, but later agreed to help support the school on the basis of the smaller amount.

Today's announcement did not stipulate what will be done with the balance of the $204,000 in contributions left after a small renovation program.

The school's president, P. Harris Anderson, has opposed establishment of the university program would complement that of Bethel, and he did not think the two schools would be in competition.

Transition Smooth As Gov. Breathitt Completes His First Day In Office

Many Of Combs' Staff Aid In Change By Remaining On Job

By CAROLE MARTIN
United Press International
FRANKFORT, Ky. — The transition was smooth.

Joe Bell, an administrative assistant to Gov. Bert Combs, who held a similar post in the administration of Gov. Bert Combs, described the first day of the new administration as "a full one, but aside from a 30-minute staff meeting, just another day."

He said even the mail load was not exceptionally heavy on Tuesday.

Bell commented that he felt the transition from one administration to the other "went along smoothly."

He added that the fact many of former Gov. Bert Combs' staff were retained by the new governor "had a lot to do with it."

Kentucky's 39-year-old chief executive reported for work early—at 7:30 a. m. (EST)—and spent most of the day conferring with staff members about administrative matters and plans for the pre-legislative conference to be held next Monday and Tuesday at Kentucky Dam Village State Park.

Hold Two-hour Meeting
Breathitt's longest meeting was a two-hour session with Lt. Gov. Harry Lee Waterfield in which administrative matters were the main topic.

Early Wednesday, former Gov. and Mrs. Earle C. Clements paid a brief courtesy call on the governor before leaving the capital. They had been at the inauguration ceremonies on Tuesday.

In the afternoon, Breathitt issued executive orders appointing heads of department, who then were sworn in by Chief Justice James Milliken of the state court of Appeals.

Breathitt managed to take an hour out of his busy schedule to have breakfast with his family at the Executive Mansion, but didn't find time for a lunch break.

He dined at 6 p. m. at the mansion with Waterfield, Foster Ockerman, the state Democratic campaign chairman, and members of the campaign staff.

Issues Three Edicts Breathitt Made Three Official Pronouncements During His First Day As Governor

The first delineated the Christmas and New Year holiday periods for state workers and warned all employees about "allowing alcoholic beverages" to be served or consumed on state premises, and warned against accepting gifts of value from donors doing business with the state.

He declared Friday would be Jane Todd Crawford Memorial Day in Kentucky and set Jan. 9 as George Washington Carver Day.

At an early morning meeting he told members of his office staff that he would expect the same loyalty and hard work they had given his predecessor and political mentor, Governor Combs.

Combs had given all members of his staff the opportunity to transfer out of his office and take jobs with the state which would be covered by the merit system about a year ago, but they all stayed on and took their chances that they would be able to continue in the governor's office under the new administration.

Breathitt said he was grateful to them all and dismissed his staff with the comment:

"Now let's get to work."

Handwriting Problems Are Discussed

By DAVID NYDICK

UPI Education Specialist

Research shows that children's problems in handwriting usually occur with a few rather than many letters.

Parents can help by encouraging their children to practice. Don't make a big issue of handwriting but do make your child aware of its importance.

Q. My third grade child is learning regular writing and is having difficulty. His work is not neat and his letter formation is poor. How can I help him?

A. The first step is to talk with the teacher. If your child has poor coordination and has not developed the necessary muscular control, it would be best to delay changing to cursive regular writing. If this is not the case, there are three major things which must be learned. In cursive writing the letters are slanted as is the paper. There are various new letter forms which must be learned. In addition, the child must learn to make connecting strokes between letters.

You should find out the letter forms which are being taught in school. These vary slightly, and you do not want to confuse the child. A reasonable amount of practice is essential. Perhaps you could encourage the writing of notes and letters to friends and relatives. Also remember that manuscript printing writing is a useful form and should be maintained.

Q. My son, John, is in the second grade. He still prints instead of writing. When should he learn to use regular writing?

A. Cursive regular writing generally is introduced in the third grade. Some schools may start at the end of the second grade while others may wait until the intermediate grades. It is not advisable to rush the change from manuscript printing. Some of the indications that a child is ready to make the change are: His own desire to change—his ability to print all the letters properly; his ability to read cursive writing; his ability to copy printing properly and with reasonable speed. Usually a child has acquired the muscular control to make the change in about the third grade.

Regardless of when it is taught, don't expect too high a standard for many years. The ability to write actually continues to grow until one reaches adulthood when all the muscular skills have fully developed.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 355 Shipment of the 11th and 12th Corps from Meade's Army of the Potomac, 1,200 miles westward, in September 1863, to reinforce Rosecrans for the Chattanooga campaign was known to the Confederate high command quickly. The demonstration of strategic mobility provided by railroads involved 20,000 men, their armaments, some 3,000 horses and mules. It could not have escaped notice of Confederate informants.

R. E. Lee had 46,000 men who regrouped, rested and were restored in morale to some extent since the defeat at Gettysburg and retreat south of the Potomac and Rapidan. Lee drew up a plan to deter the Union command from transferring other troops from the Army of the Potomac to the west and also to so threaten Washington as to induce Meade to withdraw northward. Oct. 9, 1863, Lee sent infantry across the Rapidan, screened by cavalry, to attack and turn the right flank of Meade's army, which was stretched out from Culpeper to the Rapidan. The design was to enable the Rebel main force to stage a stunning attack on the Union rear or on retreating troops. However, after a battle, Oct. 14, at Bristoe Station, where A. P. Hill's Corps had heavy losses, there was an indecisive month of maneuver. Meade retreated, but Lee failed to cut him off before the Union Army reached a strong defensive position.

World Made For Right Handers

By A. E. HEFFERMAN

United Press International

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Left-handed Robert T. Cowles complains it's the wrong hand and this world was made for the right-handed.

So, he's organizing "The Left-handed Association of America." At present, Cowles is president and only member but in spare time from his printing business he prepares letters, mailing pieces and other propaganda for a campaign to get 21 million other left-handers in the country benefits they deserve.

Cowles listed a few: re-designed watches, tools, outboard motor pull cords, guns, egg spatulas and can openers.

"The way I figure it," said Cowles, "money spends just as well in either hand and I believe the manufacturers could stimulate a great new boom in the economy by catering a little to the southpaws."

Cowles said that as he grew from childhood he began to realize the world was made for right-handed persons and he would just have to adapt.

"I adjusted to being left-handed and maintained a fairly good disposition until World War II," said Cowles, 39, married and father of three, who was drafted into the infantry.

"First I had to go against my better judgment and salute with my right arm," Cowles said. "Some day I'm going to have that little trick changed so the lefty if he so desires can salute with his left arm."

"The crowning glory of Army life came when a big burly sergeant told me I would have to fire my M1 rifle from the right shoulder. At this point I put my foot down and made it all the way to the regimental commander before I was allowed shoot from my left shoulder. I explained to him that it would be my life that might be lost. I survived the war much to my delight."

Woman's World

Dear Abby . . .

HE'S ALWAYS IN THE DRINK!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow who has recently been shown a lot of attention by a doctor. He has never been married, and is considered quite a catch. I enjoy his company and am flattered with the attention he's been giving me; but here is the problem: When we are out socially, he drinks like a fish. You can't tell a 56-year-old man that you refuse to ride with him when he's been drinking, so I just close my eyes and go. Is there a diplomatic way to handle this, Abby?

LUCKY
DEAR ABBY: Lucky is right! If you like his company and he drinks like a fish, tell him you would be glad to swim with him, but you don't want to ride with him. If he refuses, let some other "lucky" lady have him.

DEAR ABBY: This may seem like a silly question, but I am 15 and would like to know if a girl is supposed to say thank you when a boy or a man opens a door for her. Or should she just accept it as something they are supposed to do?

JUST ME
DEAR ME: Evan though a courtesy is expected, it should always be acknowledged with thanks.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I had a double-ring ceremony when we were married, only he never wears his ring. Once he said he lost it, and as soon as I told him I'd buy him another one he found it somewhere. Another time he came home with his ring in his wallet. He is always making up some excuse for not wearing his wedding ring. I don't believe a word he says. I got mad and told him if he wasn't going to wear his wedding ring, I wasn't wearing mine, either. I took mine off and haven't worn it in a week. We have two children and I know it doesn't look right, but do you blame me?

NO RING
DEAR NO: Two wrongs don't make a right. Put your wedding ring back on and find out what there is about your married life that makes your husband like to pretend he is single.

CONFIDENTIAL TO VIV: If you

Mrs. Frances Breathitt Is Busy Too With New Position

By JASON L. LEVINE
HOPKINSVILLE, Ky. (AP) — While Gov. Edward T. Breathitt concerns himself with matters of state this week, his wife, Frances, has a few problems of her own. They center around the family's new home-to-be the Executive Mansion at Frankfort.

With a healthy, active contingent of four children, Mrs. Breathitt will have her hands full when she moves into the mansion. But she intends to let her husband live alone in the chief executive's house until Dec. 20, while workmen complete a project she is "desperately anxious" to have accomplished by the time she and the children arrive.

Kentucky's new first family was given a guided tour of the two-story mansion last week. The first thing Mrs. Breathitt noticed was the lady's powder room, located on the second floor of the home, would present difficulties.

"I'm desperately anxious to move the powder room to the first floor," she said in an interview with United Press International Sunday.

She has a good reason for it. With three school-age children—Mary Frances, 18; Linda, 12, and Susan, 7, and 4-year-old Edward III, she wants the upper floor of the mansion kept strictly for family fall terms at Hopkinsville are normal.

Replaces Sun Porch
So the powder room comes to the first floor. The sun porch off the dining room is being converted.

Mrs. Breathitt and the children left for Frankfort Tuesday morning with Gov.-elect Breathitt. She and the children will stay in Frankfort for the ceremonies but will return to Hopkinsville Wednesday.

At the Christmas recess, Dec. 20, she and the children will leave their Hopkinsville home to take up residence at the Governor's Mansion. The children have received permission to withdraw from their Hopkinsville schools Dec. 20 and get complete credit for the fall term.

The first lady said the children will be registered in Frankfort schools sometime after the first of the year for the spring terms. The mansion kept strictly for family fall terms at Hopkinsville are normal.

Close Look At Appalachia

PROBLEMS AND NEEDS of Eastern Kentucky are being studied by the President's Appalachian Regional Commission. Here a group of officials, headed by James L. Sundquist (lower left), deputy undersecretary of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and Mrs. Marie Turner, Breathitt County school superintendent, talk with students at Lick Branch School in the county. John Whisman (upper left), special assistant to Gov. Bert Combs, accompanied the officials on the tour.

ally finished on Jan. 17.
The Breathitts will not be moving any of their own furniture into the mansion. Furniture comes with the house. Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Breathitt Sr., will move into the Breathitt home at Hopkinsville. The older Breathitt, now living in Lynchburg, Va., is retiring soon.

Needs Piano

However, there is one piece of furniture she feels is needed, she said. "The governor's mansion does not own a piano, which I think is terrible."

"I think as lovely a ballroom as it has, it's a crime there isn't one there," she said.

There's a definite purpose for her desire, aside from the fact that Frances Breathitt plays the piano herself and would like to have her children learn.

She is contemplating something new at the Governor's Mansion—Sunday afternoon concerts.

She intends to invite artists, both young and old, to perform at the Governor's Mansion. She has been thinking about the idea for some

Giants Picked For Title Next Sunday

NEW YORK (AP) — The odds-makers, ignoring the New York Giants' 1-0 setback by Pittsburgh in their first game this season, are quoting the Steelers' men as 7-point favorites for their climactic return game with the Steelers at Yankee Stadium Sunday.

The Giants need a win or a tie against the Steelers to qualify for the National Football League's championship playoff for the third straight year.

The Chicago Bears are picked to defeat the Detroit Lions by at least six points at Chicago Sunday and thus wrap up the Western Division championship.

The Green Bay Packers are 17-point favorites over the New York Jets in a Saturday afternoon game at San Francisco. The Packers are in the Western crown for the fourth year if they beat the Fortyniners and the Lions upset the Jets.

In Sunday's other NFL games, the Colts are 9 over the Los Angeles Rams at Baltimore; the Eagles are over the Minnesota Vikings at Philadelphia; the St. Louis Cardinals are picked by 9 at home over the Dallas Cowboys; and the Cleveland Browns are favored by 8 over the Redskins at Washington.

In Saturday afternoon American Football League games, the Boston Patriots are favored by 2 points over the Chiefs at Kansas City and the Buffalo Bills are 5 over the Jets at New York.

On Sunday, the Oakland Raiders are picked by 13 at home over the Denver Broncos; and the San Diego Chargers are 4 over the Oilers at Houston.

UK And Easter Extend Win Streak; Union Suffers Loss

by United Press International
The University of Kentucky and Eastern Kentucky scored major victories in Kentucky collegiate basketball play Wednesday night, but Union's Bulldogs had their seven-game winning streak shattered by Kentucky State.

Louisville's Cardinals used a deep bench to turn back tough LaSalle, 70-60, in a Philadelphia-Palestra doubleheader.

John Reuther, whose 23 points led the Cards, suffered a concussion

Vandy Downs Duke As Miller Hits Net For A Sizzling 39

by United Press International
John E. Miller, hitting with the accuracy of a mountain squirrel, scored 39 points Wednesday night to lead the Vanderbilt Commodores to a 97-92 victory over second-ranked Duke University.

Miller, who stands an even 6 feet and was the shortest man on the court, moved with cat-like grace through Duke's giant squad and executed a fading jump shot with uncanny accuracy. He hit on 17 of 23 field goal attempts, added five more points from the foul line and went the entire game without being charged with a personal foul.

The victory will boost Vanderbilt from its 16th place in United Press International's national rankings and send Duke tumbling from its position behind top-ranked Loyola of Chicago.

Southeastern Conference teams made it a clean sweep in the only three games played Wednesday. Florida romped past Tampa 106-75 and Tennessee won a defensive battle over Sewanee.

Miller scored 10 of his 39 points when knocked down late in the game, and remained in a Philadelphia hospital for observation today.

Eastern's Maroons, plagued by foul-shooting difficulties but firing 48 per cent from the floor, turned back a Marshall University rally in the second half for an 85-73 victory.

After taking what seemed a decisive 49-24 halftime lead, the Maroons permitted the Mid-America Conference team from Huntington, W. Va., to close to six points at 73-67 before pulling away again for the victory.

Dennis Bradley was high man for the young Maroons with 25 points, followed by Lee Lemos with 18. Tom Langfitt led Marshall scoring with 19.

Eastern's meager 13 of 24 at the free throw line held down the margin of victory, but it still went down as the third win against a single defeat for the Maroons, who now face a lay-off until Dec. 19 when they play at Syracuse.

Five of the Kentucky State Thorobreds hit in double figures as they snapped the Union win streak with an 81-69 decision at Barbourville.

Tonight's schedule has Berea at Villa Madonna in a KMAC contest, Georgetown playing at Morehead, and Cumberland beginning play in the Western Carolina Tournament at Cullowhee, N.C.

when it counted in an overtime period which came after Duke forward Jeff Mullins sank a 27-foot set shot as regulation time ended to knot the score at 85-85.

Mullins, the Blue Devils' chief scoring threat who has been averaging 28 points, was held to only 16. Jay Buckley was high scorer for Duke with 23.

CHAPTER 27
POWELL, a silent Charles O'Connor was off on what he thought was a very wild wild goose chase. It was just a little something he'd like to know about.

Last night, by prearrangement, he'd called Katherine around, at nine o'clock. "Get any- thing interesting?"

"I don't think anything at all. The Bickells are nice enough people, they seemed ready to cooperate, enter Gordon in a remedial course—which could help him a lot, if he'd cooperate. At least I picked up one of the new slang words." She laughed. "And I wonder what on earth the connection is."

"What do you mean?"

"This was a new one on me. When Gordon's father was pressing him about knowing anything, he came out with it—said, 'I told the fuzzes all I know. I took it to mean the police. But—'"

"Now I will be damned," said O'Connor. "Sure about that, Katy? He said 'fuzzes'?"

"Yes, why?"

"That's slang, isn't it? It's pro-crook slang, even though I wonder where the hell a ten-year-old kid—"

"What? Really? How funny. They're quite respectable people, you could see that. He's a skilled workman, probably not that of them has much education, but they're honest citizens. In fact he said it was partly on Gordon's account they moved to a better neighborhood."

"I don't know exactly where the other side of town Gordon went to Glenbrook. Ebb, monetary last year, what the father does and where?"

"He works at Lockwood now. Wait a minute—what was it he said?—yes, he used to work for a Bill Wegge at an auto agency on San Fernando Road."

"Um," said O'Connor. "And their backward boy Gordon coming out with the pro slang. A funny little something, O.K., thanks, Katy."

"I wish you wouldn't call me—"

"It suits you. Can I afford to take you to dinner, say Tuesday night? I guess so. Seven o'clock."

"You just wait a minute! You ask me politely instead of taking it for granted I'll be falling all over myself to say yes, and maybe I'll think about it! Didn't anybody ever teach you any manners?"

"Oh, I'm just a dumb Irish cop," said O'Connor. "You know that—what do you expect? I'd say tomorrow but I've got to get in some more target practice. See you, Katy," and he put the phone down.

ON SUNDAY morning he found the auto agency on San Fernando Road, and asked if there was a Bill Wegge around.

"Sure," said the salesman who had buttonholed him, looking disappointed. "He's our garage manager, head mechanic. Not here today."

O'Connor got Wegge's address, Garfield Avenue, and drove down there. Wegge was home, a little leathery fellow about forty-five, with the strong, well-shaped hands of a mechanic. He looked nervous when he heard O'Connor's name and asked, "What do you want with me?"

"Do you know an Albert Bicknell?"

"Oh," said Wegge. He groped in his shirt pocket for his cigarettes. "Why sure. Sure I know Bert. Used to work at our garage."

"When did he quit?"

"Lemme see," said Wegge, looking deeply. "Some time around last March, it was."

"They've moved just lately—where were they living then, you know?"

"Seems to me it was some- where over toward Burbank, wait a second. I'll have it, I got a good memory for addresses, and I drove him home a couple of times his car was on the tins—thirty-four something Longa Way, it was Listen, why the hell are the cops asking about Bert? I don't get it."

"Just a very routine check, said O'Connor. "Thanks, very much, Mr. Wegge."

He drove out to Longa Way, having to look it up on a map. It was a narrow old street almost up to the Burbank line, this was a poor area of town, shabby and run down.

The drab street here was lined mostly with duplexes and old-fashioned four-family apartments. The thirty-four hundred block wasn't, fortunately, very long. O'Connor parked at one end of the block, got out, and began to ring doorbells and ask questions.

He thought he'd hit pay dirt at one apartment building, where an immensely fat landlady said, "Bicknell? Seems like I remember that name—was they the ones had two-on-two awhile? Oh, no, sure enough, their name was Bicknell. I can't call to mind—"

He got there finally (without much doubt) at 3427. The youngish fellow in shorts, polishing the five-year-old black sedan in the drive, said, "Bicknell? I seem to recall—yeah,
